Bring your SMILE!

Fall Weather is here...

Children enjoy playing outdoors and we go outside everyday as the weather permits.

Some days are a bit chilly so we recommend sending a fall jacket or sweatshirt for your child to wear. As the days get cooler, a hat and a pair of light gloves will be helpful in keeping your child warm and comfortable when playing outdoors.

In her article "I Want My Baby to Read: Supporting Parents in Guiding Early Language and Literacy Development," Bisa Batten Lewis offers these reasons why teaching babies to read is not good practice:

- It's not developmentally appropriate.
- There is no need to rush.
- Babies don't read; they memorize!
- Reading instruction is too formal for babies who learn best through play.
- Other areas of development suffer.
- Reading early will not make your baby a genius.
